HOW TO PLAY

What do you need?

- A bouquet of artificial flowers (more on how to make one below!)
- A music playlist or someone to control the music
- A spacious area for guests to stand in a circle
- A list of questions and dares (see suggestions below)
- A prize for the winner (optional, but fun)

How do you play?

- Arrange your guests in a circle, either standing or sitting. Just make sure there's enough space to pass the bouquet without anyone getting elbowed.
- Hand the bouquet to one of the guests and start playing music.
- Guests pass the bouquet around the circle while the music plays. The aim is to keep the bouquet moving smoothly.
- At random intervals, stop the music. The guest holding the bouquet when the music stops must either answer a question about the bride OR complete a dare. Answer correctly (or nail the dare), and they stay in the game. Otherwise, they're out. Check out our printable guide below for a handy list of suggested dares and questions.
- Restart the music and repeat the process. Keep going until only one guest remains – that's your winner!

Extra Tips

- Keep the circle tight enough that passing feels easy. Too much space and the game loses momentum.
- Pick upbeat and lively songs to keep the energy high and guests excited. Some ideas are below.
- Have your list of dares or questions ready. You don't want to be trying to think of things on the spot.
- If you're hosting a bigger shower with a wide age range, lean heavier on the "about the bride" questions and lighter on the personal dares to keep everyone comfortable and involved.
- Consider variations depending on your crowd.
- Make the bouquet look like it belongs at a bridal shower. See our DIY tips below
- The MOH or a designated co-host should run the music so the person controlling it isn't also trying to play

FUNNY DARES

Performance Dares

- Serenade the bride with a love song — made up lyrics strongly encouraged
- Give a 30-second toast to the bride, off the top of your head, right now
- Compose a four-line love poem on the spot and perform it dramatically
- Do your best catwalk down an imaginary runway
- Cross the room using the silliest walk you can think of
- Do your best chicken dance — full commitment required
- Do 10 seconds of your best wedding dance moves, then freeze in your most ridiculous pose
- Act out how the couple met — no words, just interpretive movement

Impersonation & Acting Dares

- Do your best impression of the bride
- Propose to the person on your left — down on one knee, full speech
- Pretend to cry happy tears and give a dramatic speech about the bride
- Using two socks as puppets, act out a scene from the couple's favorite movie
- Pose as a famous statue and hold it for 60 seconds while everyone guesses which one

Phone Dares

- Text someone a dramatic "we need to talk" and show the group their response
- Call someone and tell them the bride says hi — no further explanation
- Read the last thing you Googled out loud
- Show the group your camera roll and explain the most recent photo

Creative & Craft Dares

- Fashion a wedding veil using only toilet paper and model it down the runway
- Let the group style your hair however they want for the next five minutes
- Let someone else apply your lipstick — then wear it for the rest of the game
- Write "bride's BFF" on your forehead with lipstick

Social & Interaction Dares

- Swap shoes with the person next to you for the next two rounds
- Speak in a British accent until your next turn
- Try to make the bride laugh using only facial expressions — no sounds allowed
- Repeat everything the person to your right says for the next three minutes
- Tell the group about your most awkward first date — don't leave anything out
- Tell a joke or funny story that has to make at least one person laugh before you can sit back down

Wild Card Dares

- Describe the bride using only food — at least five items
- Give the bride one piece of advice she absolutely should not follow
- Share your most embarrassing moment from the last year
- Sing the first line of any wedding song right now, no hesitation
- What reality show do you secretly binge? Defend your answer to the group
- Pop a balloon using only hugs
- Blindfolded, taste a spoonful of a mystery condiment mixture and try to identify every ingredient
